The only major changes I made to my final diagram is that I orginally though I would have inventory leading directly to chip, since it was "chip's inventory", but after coding through most of the assignment, I realized it made a lot more sense to me to treat inventory as any other class that needed to be built within each Level class, so Inventory now leads to Level instead of Chip.